Contents of Volume 15

Aulotte, Robert	Quod credo	1
Blum, Claude	Recherches sur les fonctions épistémologiques d'une représentation allégorique: l'exemple de l'apparition en Occident de l'allégorie de la Mort en squelette	13
Bowen, Barbara C.	Two literary genres: the emblem and the joke	29
Carron, Jean-Claude	Critiques paradigmatiques et lecture rhétorique	37
Cheney, Patrick	Spenser's completion of The Squire's Tale: love, magic, and heroic action in the Legend of Cambell and Triamond	135
Cowgill, Bruce Kent	"By corpus dominus": Harry Bailly as false spiritual guide	157
Cunnar, Eugene R.	Crashaw's Bulla: a baroque and paradoxical mirror image of religious poetics	183
Davis, Natalie Zemon	A Renaissance text to the historian's eye: the gifts of Montaigne	47
Freccero, Carla	Damning haughty dames: Panurge and the Haulte Dame de Paris (Pantagruel, 14)	57
Kritzman, Lawrence D.	Pedagogical graffiti and the rhetoric of conceit	69
Long, Pamela O.	The contribution of architectural writers to a 'scientific' outlook in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries	265
McClure, George W.	Healing eloquence: Petrarch, Salutati, and the physicians	317

Maddox, Donald	Inventing invention: process in Pléiade poetics	211
Norton, Glyn P.	Strategies of fluency in the French Renaissance text: improvisation and the art of writing	85
Regosin, Richard L.	Conceptions of the text and the generation(s) of meaning: Montaigne's Essais and the place(s) of the reader	101
Stone, Donald, Jr.	The role of literary history	115
Wall, John N.	See Wooden and Wall
Wooden, Warren W., and John N. Wall, Jr.	Thomas More and the painter's eye: visual perspective and artistic purpose in More's Utopia	231
Zegura, Elizabeth Chesney	Toward a feminist reading of Rabelais	125